“Finding the Way West, from Lewis and Clark to the Oregon Trail”

This exhibit examines the skill, fortitude, and wits required by early explorers to find their way through the wilderness, make maps and collect scientific information. Compare your frontier survival skill, scientific knowledge, and ingenuity by trying hands on exhibits to test strength and creativity. See historic maps that chart the opening of the west that began with Lewis and Clark through to the era when pioneers traveled west on the Oregon Trail, and on into modern times.
